

The Darkness

An Essay

Predictions of Darkness

In recent months, there have been an increasing number of web sites coming into being informing us that we are about to undergo a period of three days of darkness some time in the near future. Most of these web sites state that this period of three days have historical precedents that are recorded in The Old Testament and in Mayan records. But what truth is there to these predictions and from where do these predictions originate?

Historical Records

Several of these web sites use the text of the Book of Exodus from the Old Testament to “prove” that there have been “days of darkness” in the past and that when they occurred, the effects on the population was far-reaching.

From The Book of Exodus chapter 10, verses 21-23:

“And the Lord said unto Moses; stretch out thine hand toward heaven, that there may be darkness over the land of Egypt, even darkness which may be felt.”

“And Moses stretched forth his hand toward heaven; and there was a thick darkness in all the land of Egypt for three days.”

“They saw not another, neither rose from his place for three days but all the children of Israel had light in their dwellings.”

That seems to say that Moses brought about a state of “thick” darkness that lasted for three days and somehow benefitted his followers but brought problems for others without specifying just what those benefits and problems actually were.

The current warnings about three days of darkness state that they will extend world-wide whereas these passages from Exodus specifically state that the darkness was only over Egypt. Certainly, if we look at historical records from other countries there are no accounts of similar days of darkness; thick or otherwise.

If we then continue on further into the Exodus story, we find that Moses and his followers were led across the deserts and wilderness by “a column of smoke by day” and by “fire by night”.

So what produces “a column of smoke by day” and “fires by night”?

There are two possible answers here.

Firstly: the area around Egypt is rich in oil, specifically bitumen-bearing sands or tar-pits. These were specifically written about by the ancient Babylonians. These bitumen-bearing sands were also known to catch fire, when struck by lightning, and to burn for several days.

Note: the climate and vegetation of the area was very different to what they are today. At the time of the Exodus story, about 5,000 years ago, the climate and vegetation was sub-tropical with lush vegetation and heavy rains. As the climate of the area dried up, so did the bitumen sands.

If the prevailing winds were blowing from the north and there was a burning region of bitumen-bearing sands, would that not cause “a thick darkness” and the fumes from such burning cause people to become weakened?

Secondly: there is also evidence of volcanic activity in this region also about 5,000 years ago.

This again can cause “a thick darkness” and poisonous fumes.

Both of these scenarios also produce “a column of smoke by day” and “fires by night”.

The Akashic favours the volcanic explanation. There is a slight area of doubt as it could be that the outfall from a volcano set alight a region of bituminous-bearing sands.

Mayan Records

Many of the current web sites also state that there is an account of three days of darkness held within the records of Mayan peoples of South America.

However, these do not appear to exist in any historical record either recorded by the Mayans or any of the other peoples of South America either before or after the Mayans existed.

Therefore the inclusion of “Mayan Records” as a source for information of three days of darkness appears to be a hoax.

Other Aspects of the Predictions of Darkness

Currently, these predictions of three days of darkness do not stop at it just becoming dark.

In addition to “the darkness”, these predictions go on to say that:

- This will be a total darkness that is global in its extent where we will be unable to see our hands in front of our faces.
- The Earth will stop turning.
- There will be a considerable drop in oxygen levels where many will asphyxiate. (We must also put all animals outside of our homes otherwise they will use up all of our oxygen. In other words, all pets must die in order to save their owners).
- Temperatures will drop far below zero and so many will freeze to death unless they take precautions.
- There will be dimensional instability with the merging of a number of dimensions.
- With this dimensional merging there will be the arrival or emergence of a number of “entities” and “beings”.

There seems to be a number of variations on these themes but the list here covers the main aspects of these predictions.

To look at these predictions in detail:

▪ Total Global Darkness

According to the Akashic, there has never been a time in the history of the Earth where the whole of the Earth’s surface has been totally dark.

As with the story from Exodus, there have been periods of localised darkness brought about by volcanic clouds but the level of darkness produced has never been total; only down to a level of twilight.

The only way in which total darkness could occur, on a global scale, is if the sun stopped shining and if that happened all life on Earth would die no matter what precautions they took.

▪ The Earth Will Stop Turning

Again, the Akashic does not record a period when the Earth did not revolve.

There have been two events in Earth’s history that were totally catastrophic for the Earth and all of Her life (see Synthesis).

The first occurred approximately 3.8 million years ago when two planets, that were within our solar system, decided to “leave”.

The explosion produced by these two planets leaving destroyed virtually all of the life within our solar system. The Earth was rocked on Her equatorial axis and most of Her atmosphere was lost.

Despite this amount of damage, the Earth did not stop revolving nor did it bring about global darkness.

The second world-wide disaster was with the destruction of the continent of Atlantis.

The sinking of a continent triggered a huge number of earthquakes and volcanoes and shifts in the tectonic plates. There was a massive loss of life and habitats and some loss of atmosphere.

Despite this amount of damage, the Earth did not stop revolving nor did it bring about global darkness.

There is only one way in which the Earth can be stopped from revolving and that is by the death of the Earth’s consciousness.

▪ There Will Be a Considerable Drop in Oxygen

There are only two ways in which the oxygen in the atmosphere can be depleted:

Firstly: by a similar solar system-wide disaster to that which occurred 3.8 million years ago and the current “days of darkness” predictions do not make any predictions of a disaster on that scale.

Secondly: there are a huge number of tectonic plate movements which release poisonous gasses into the atmosphere. Again, the current predictions do not include for this happening.

- Temperatures Will Drop to Far Below Zero

According to the Akashic, there has never been a period in Earth history where every region of the planet has experienced temperatures that were below zero.

In fact, there has never been an ice age in the way in which scientists describe one.

Earth temperatures are determined by the activity of the sun – high sun activity and we experience high surface temperatures; low sun activity and we experience low surface temperatures.

The only way in which the whole of the Earth's surface would experience temperatures below freezing is if the sun stops shining and if that happened all life on Earth would die.

- There Will Be Dimensional Instability

It is difficult to know what to make of this part of the current predictions as the scientific understanding of dimensions bears no resemblance to how the Akashic describes dimensions.

We are used to thinking of dimensions in a physical sense: length, depth and height make up the three dimensions we are used to with time beginning to be accepted as the “fourth” dimension.

But, as far as the Akashic is concerned, dimensions relate to energy. Given that everything within this Universe has an energetic structure ($E=mc^2$), then the Akashic description of dimensions makes more sense.

A dimension, in an energy sense, relates to a range of energy frequencies which are contained within an energy “marker” or dimension. It can be seen a little like the frequency dial or slide on a radio where each station has a frequency which incorporates all of the frequencies below that station. It is the same with dimensions.

The number and distribution of dimensions has not been investigated by scientists as they are locked into a three dimensional, physical world. If we step out of the purely physical, we arrive at a very different picture of reality. For example, if we look at the human physical body. The author is a psychic surgeon who has the natural ability to “read” energy frequencies. Using this skill to read the body, it can be seen that our natural condition contains 13 dimensions within the physical body with the total soul containing a total of about 50 dimensions. If we look beyond the body, the solar system contains roughly 396 dimensions.

It does not take too much imagination to realise that all of these dimensions merge and interact with each other on a day to day basis. So when these predictions of dimensional instability talk of it as something that is new and unwelcome, it is to totally misunderstand the true nature of our solar system let alone the galaxy or universe beyond.

In a very real sense, the process of soul reintegration, we are presently undergoing, involves the merging of a large number of dimensions inevitably creating short periods of instability both within the dimensional structure of the body and its immediate surroundings with additional repercussions throughout the solar system.

In other words, dimensional instability is a fundamental part of the process of the full soul reintegrating back into the physical body.

- The Arrival Or Emergence Of Entities And Beings

We currently live in a world that is bounded by our five senses: sight, hearing, smell, touch and taste. These five physical senses naturally limit our ability to sense on a higher level.

Those who have a “sixth” sense, or psychic abilities, are able to access realms that are beyond the scope of the physical and are, therefore, able to see, or at least sense, entities and beings that those who are limited to five senses cannot.

As we progress through our process of soul reintegration, we all begin to develop our psychic vision and the realms that are currently closed to us will gradually become visible.

In other words, we will be able to communicate with the souls of those who are no longer physical, we will be able to communicate with the realms of the Faerie and we might also be able to communicate with the planet's own consciousness. So it is not that “entities” or “beings” will arrive, but we will be able to see and communicate with those that have always been there but our limited five physical senses have prevented us from doing so in the past.

This should be seen as a positive step.

Conclusions

Given that the scenarios predicted by these “days of darkness” web sites does not fit in with any event that occurred in the past, and the connections to past events do not make any sense, where do these predictions originate?

There are two possible answers.

Firstly, there are the Velon. This race of non-human beings has been causing a great deal of trouble on Earth for nearly 300 years (see Project Human Extinction) and is behind all of the political events that have occurred during that time.

The Velon control the Illuminati, the Bilderbergers, the Freemasons (particularly those at 33rd level) and, through these organisations, all western governments, non-governmental organisations, the military and most trans-national companies.

The Velon are very aware of the soul reintegration that we are undergoing on Earth and have made numerous attempts to divert this change to their own ends. Certainly their agenda is to remove the majority of people off the planet; but are they behind these “days of darkness” predictions?

It does seem possible but there is no conclusive evidence for it.

The main way in which the Velon have attempted to mislead people is through channelled messages.

Over ninety per cent of all channelled material over at least the last fifty years has originated from the Velon. The Meritraea, The Christ Consciousness, Ashtar Command, all “Angel” communications, Lord Metatron, Lord Sananda, Archangels, numerous alien races, the Galactic Federation, the Galactic Council, etc. etc. are all fictional constructs of the Velon.

So are the Velon directly behind these “days of darkness” predictions?

Certainly there are hints that Velon messages have been incorporated into the predictions. This is shown by the naming of The Violet Flame, [Archangel] Michael and the Federation of Light as those who will act as our guardians and helpers whilst we are in darkness but the rest of the predictions do not follow the usual Velon pattern in that they are of doom and gloom scenarios which are not part of the usual Velon pattern. Also there is no clear claim that the Velon will be there to save us. Ashtar Command is not coming to lift us off the planet; the Galactic Federation will not be turning up to “ascend” us to a “5th dimension”; etc. etc.

So it would seem fair to conclude that this is not a Velon prediction.

Secondly. The Velon have largely been removed from this Universe and the control of the Illuminati has been removed from their hands by ambitious political-types who believe that they are carrying out “God’s” work – the so-called “Neo-cons” (or stupid bastards as they are also known).

This group have been attempting to engender fear into the population for some time whilst creating major monetary problems and political turmoil and control.

These “days of darkness” predictions have been circulated as a way of creating fear and confusion in the human population that are at the forefront of soul reintegration.

This is a deliberate attempt by the “Neo-cons” to prevent people from fulfilling their potential and so should be ignored as they are untrue and have no positive benefit.

These predictions are designed to cause doubt and fear, nothing else, and should be treated with the contempt they deserve.

Alternatively, the whole thing could just be a ploy by an outdoor supplies company trying to boost sales of minus forty sleeping bags, chemical lights and no-cook foods as some of the web sites are promoting.

The author has been working as a psychic and psychic surgeon for about 30 years. He has carried out extensive research into the workings of the body and diets and medical research as well as who and what is behind the New World Order and what their aims are during this 30 year period. He can access the Akashic at will.

He is the author of 11 books, has two 2 hour interviews available on DVD and two one hour podcast interviews available on:
